PASSENGERS UNHURT WHEN TRAIN DERAILS

Bridge Tracks Washed Out
By Heavy Storm
Sunday.

DOCTORS AT SCENE
Ten Coaches Leave Rails—
Other Damage Caused
By Storm

Dayton, Sept. 4.—One hundred and two passengers on Baltimore and Ohio passenger train No. 57, which left Dayton at 7:50 o'clock Sunday morning for Cincinnati, escaped serious injury when the train was derailed north of Middletown.

The wreck was caused by a washout of the tracks on a bridge spanning Elk creek, which was swollen to the level of the bridge floor because of excessive rains after mid-night Saturday night.

Other damage estimated at thousands of dollars was caused in Dayton and the Miami Valley by the severe electrical storm which accompanied the rain.

Telephone and power wires were torn down, transformers were burned out, one barn near Drexel was struck by lightning and interurban service on the Cincinnati and Dayton traction line was stopped for several hours, due to the washout of another bridge north of Hamilton.

The wreck near Middletown occurred about 8:45 o'clock. It was caused by rails being loosened by the flood, and spreading when the locomotive drawing the train approached the bridge. The engine was derailed, a draw bar broken, and ten of the eleven coaches of the train also were derailed.

One of the baggage coaches plunged into the swollen creek, hanging on the edge of the bridge by its rear truck. None of the passengers, eight of whom were in bed in Pullman cars, and two of whom occupied the diner, were injured severely enough to be taken to the hospital.

Middletown doctors were rushed to the scene and attended bruises and cuts of the numerous injured. Conductor Wise, in charge of the train, was not hurt.

H. & A. COMPANY SUFFERS LOSS FROM BIG FIRE

$100,000 Worth of Material
Affected In Sunday

More than $100,000 worth of raw material stored in warehouses of the Hoover and Allison Company, was affected by a stubborn blaze caused by lightning during the rain and wind storm early Sunday morning.

With workmen employed Monday in attempting to salvage as much of the large quantity of sisal and Manila as possible, officials of the company were still unable to place an estimate on the exact damage that will be suffered as a result of the conflagration. Officials said it would be several days before they will be able to place an accurate estimate on the loss.

Firemen battled the most stubborn blaze in the history of the department in a fight to save the burning material that began at almost two o'clock Sunday morning and had not ended Monday. Although the fire was confined to a large fireproof warehouse, the damage from water soaked material untouched by fire and the raising of the immense amount of water thrown in adjoining warehouses will pile up the loss.

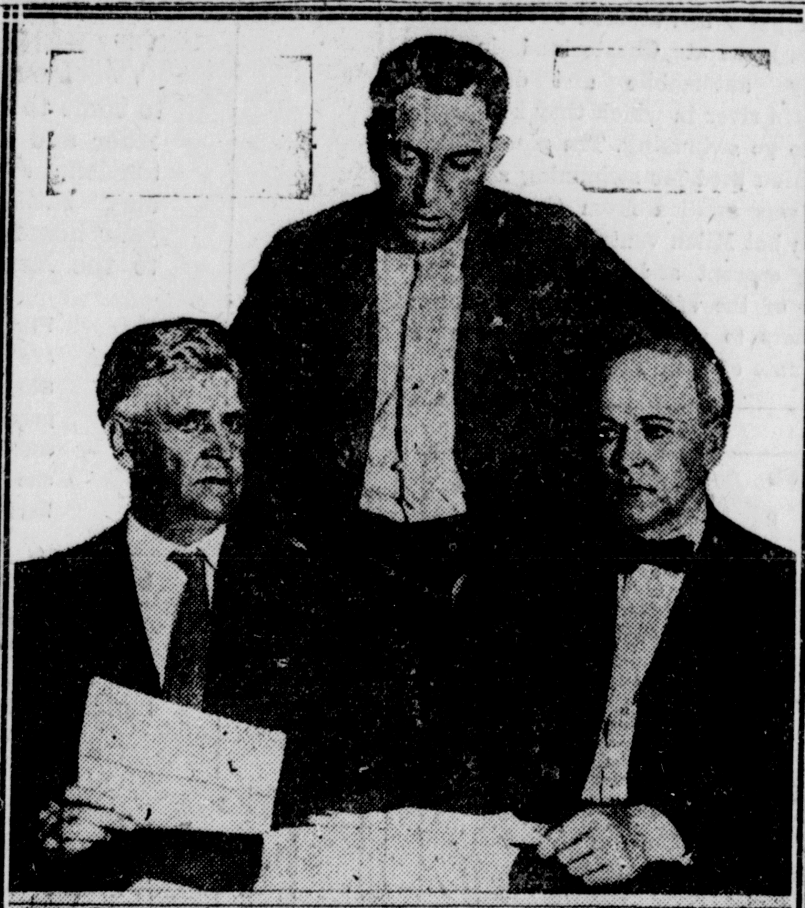

The fire is believed to have been caused when a bolt of lightning ran in on an electric feed wire from the central part of the company yard, and blew out the fuses in a switch box in the warehouse. The resulting flash is believed to have fired the large quantities of raw material stored in the building. The fire opened up automatic sprinklers which soaked the bales of raw material on the top of the piles.

The fire department responded to a first alarm at 1:50 o'clock, and ran two streams of water into the building. Twenty minutes later a second alarm was sent in and five streams of water directed on the blaze with the extra equipment. It was seven o'clock Sunday morning before the fire had been gotten under control and a crew of firemen was left at the scene all day with water equipment playing on the smoldering material.

The warehouse is practically new, of fire proof construction, made of brick with cement floors, steel window sashes and wire-mesh glass. It

E. J. Bourdage, J. G. Glaser & C. W. Kiddekauf.

Attorney-General Edward J. Bourdage, of Illinois; Chief Investigator J. G. Glaser and Assistant Attorney General C. W. Kiddekauf are conducting an investigation on the site of the Herrin (Ill.) mine massacre, where a score of strike breakers were shot down by a frenzied mob which had taken them prisoners. Despite threats against his life the Attorney-General is pressing his investigation before a Special Grand Jury in Williamson County.

STATE TAX COMMISSION WILL LEARN IF PROPERTY IS LISTED AT TRUE VALUE EXAMINERS TO VISIT MANY COUNTIES

Claim 61 Counties Have Not Had Reappraisal of Property Since 1910—Complaint Causes Commission To Act

Columbus, Sept. 4.—The state tax commission is to make a systematic investigation—the first time in years, if not the first time in the history of the commission—to ascertain whether property in Ohio is on the tax duplicate at its true value in money.

A number of inspectors or examiners are to be employed to visit as many counties as possible to compare tax valuations with actual market values. Certain typical counties, it is planned, will be given more searching investigations than others. The object is two-fold: First, for the information of the tax commission itself, and second for a report on conditions to the next legislature.

Section 5613 of the general code makes it the duty of the tax commission to equalize tax valuations as between counties as well as within counties. Little if anything along this line has ever been done by the commission because of a shortage of employees. Requests for appropriations for the purpose repeatedly have been turned down by the legislature.

Somewhat of an emergency has arisen of late and the state emergency board appropriated $6000 for salaries of equalization examiners. Requests for the appropriation were made by the tax commission recently after a number of public utilities went preliminary steps in suits to enjoin the collection of taxes on valuations fixed by the commission. These concerns do not charge that their properties are on the duplicate at more than their true value in money, but they complain about being discriminated against because other property in the same communities, valuations of which are fixed by county authorities, is on the duplicate at much lower figures. A violation of the uniform rule provision in the constitution is alleged.

For some years there has been a growing complaint, because 61 counties refused to make real estate reappraisals, while increases in valuations, in some instances large ones, were imposed in the remaining 27. In the 61 counties there has been no reappraisal since 1910, which was the last year under the old law requiring reappraisals every four years.

The periodical reappraisal law was repealed on the theory that reappraisal should be a continuous affair, to be undertaken in counties or parts of counties as the necessity for it developed. When officials in few counties did anything in this direction because of local opposition, the legislature in 1919 passed a law authorizing the state tax commission to order reappraisals. Such an order was issued for 61 counties near the end of 1920, just at a time when farm values began to slump. Grange and farm bureaus set up such opposition that ex-Governor Cox and later Governor Davis asked the commission to rescind its orders, which the commission did.

This aroused the ire of counties in which reappraisals had taken place. The auditor of Cuyahoga County retaliated by granting a horizontal reduction of 10 per cent on all real estate. In Clark County a similar cut was made, and in Summit County one of 20 per cent.

Many tax experts say the old system of designating by law the years in which reappraisals shall take place is the best, and one of the big questions before the next legislature will be to say whether, and if so, when, there shall be a general reappraisal of property in Ohio, road manager, enlisted in the fight

LIMITATION OF ARMAMENT IS UP BEFORE LEAGUE

Representatives of 51 Nations Present at Plenary Session.

U. S. NOT PRESENT

Lloyd George Favors Reduction in Armaments, It is Said

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 4.—Limitation of armaments in Europe—a movement mainly sponsored by Great Britain—promises to be one of the liveliest issues in the third plenary session of the league of nations assembly, which began here today with representatives of fifty-one nations present. The United States, Germany and Russia, not being members of the league, are not participating.

The suggestion has been advanced that a naval conference be called to extend the agreements on naval reduction reached at the Washington conference last winter. Lord Robert Cecil of England, is urging that land and air disarmament be discussed at the same time, the reductions to be based on mutual pledges of defense in case of future aggressions.

Premier Lloyd George is strongly in favor of reduction of armaments. It is understood that he holds the view that European debtors probably could get better terms from the United States on the international debt issue if Europe ceases to spend so much money on war machinery.

The league committee which has been entrusted with the task of drafting recommendations on disarmament will report at this meeting.

Among the other reports to be submitted are the following:

1.—On the administration by league commission, of the Saar basin and the free city of Danzig.

2.—On the international court of justice and arbitration which has been permanently installed at The Hague.

3.—On the frontiers awarded to Poland and Germany in the partition of Upper Silesia.

4.—On measures taken by the hygienic committee of the league to draw a sanitary cordon—a "ho man's land"—along the western and southern borders of Russia to prevent the spread of epidemics from Russia.

5.—On mandates in Africa and in the Pacific.

6.—On steps to restore peace in the near east, where the Greeks and Turks are at war, and the rights of minorities (Christians) in Asia Minor.

7.—On the results of the international transportation congress.

German indemnity and inter allied war debts will play no part in the deliberations.

GAUGES IN FLOOD

Liahbad, India, Sept. 4.—The Ganges river is in flood and it is feared that loss of life will be very heavy. Dispatches received here today said that hundreds of hamlets have been destroyed.

RAINS ARE LIFE-SAVERS

Athens, Sept. 4.—Recent rains here are reported by farmers as being life-savers for the fall field and orchard crops. As much rainfall has been recorded in the past week, as was reported for the entire forepart of the summer. Country roads, which were made nearly impassable owing to the heavy waters, are now reported as drying up and fit for travel.

LABOR CHALLENGED BY GREAT AUTOCRATIC POWER THAT IS BOTH BLIND AND IGNORANT SAYS GOMPERS IN LABOR MESSAGE

BY SAMUEL GOMPERS
President of the American Federation of Labor.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Labor Day this year finds all labor and all progress challenged by a great autocracy of power which is both blind and ignorant.

All right, thinking men and women had hoped that the end of the war would bring opportunity for constructive effort in the rebuilding of a shattered world. They had hoped to see a great edifice of progress reared upon the ruins of war and upon the grave of defeated autocracy.

Political autocracy was destroyed by the war. We could not foresee it was too incredible—the coalition of industrial autocrats that would arise to thrust into the arena an issue as vital to the maintenance of freedom as was the issue settled in the political world by the war.

The issue today is industrial freedom versus industrial slavery through enforced labor.

Everything now uppermost in the industrial world combines to make and shape that issue.

Great organizations of employers have declared war upon the labor movement. Organizations formed to do the propaganda work of reactionary employers have been working night and day. Organizations such as the United States Chamber of Commerce and Associated Industries have done their best, to embitter employers against the labor movement. The coal mine owner, and the railroad manager, enlisted in the fight on labor. The textile mill owners added their contribution.

Last, comes the administration, through the attorney general, pledging the strength of the administration to what he calls "the open shop." That is also what it is called by employers. It is the shop closed against union workers. It is the shop called by the more unscrupulous among employers the "American plan" shop, in which autocracy is developed to the last degree and everything really American is repudiated with brutal indifference.

This onslaught, on the unions, the efforts to establish governmental tribunals, called "industrial courts" having compulsory powers, the movement to enforce wage reductions, combine to form a great effort to destroy organization among the workers, to render them helpless and to compel them to work regardless of their will, their desire or their welfare.

No nation can call itself free or democratic when its workers are enslaved.

But let me say this: American workers will NOT submit to enslavement. They will not submit to destruction of their standards. They will not submit to restoration of autocracy. They will not permit the destruction of freedom. They are determined that the principles upon which this republic was founded shall endure, law breaking judges, greedy financial powers, grasping reactionaries, corporations and paid propagandists to the contrary notwithstanding.

It is a time that tries men's souls

MYSTERY GIRL DESCRIBES MOVIE KILLING

Miss Alice Thornton

Miss Alice Thornton, only 19 and very pretty, has admitted that Jack Bergen, movie daredevil, who was shot to death by George Kline at his home in Edgewater, N. J., was in love with her, and that she had lured him to Kline's home on the night of the killing so that she might confront him with the charge that he was too friendly with Mrs. Kline. She was jealous of her sweetheart, and when Bergen admitted he had attacked Mrs. Kline at Saranac Lake, N. Y., Kline killed him. She says she thinks Bergen "got what was coming to him" and hopes that Kline will be acquitted.

SEVEN MEN BURNED TO DEATH, TEN ARE INJURED AND $220,000 WORTH OF DAMAGE WROUGHT IN RAILROAD FIRE

Half Dozen Investigations Started to Trace Cause of Bunkhouse Blaze—Suspicion Turns From Strikers to Accident Theory.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 4.—Half a dozen thorough going investigations were underway today to determine the cause and whether accidental or by design, of the fire which destroyed the commissary building and coach repair shop at 40th street of the Pennsylvania railroad, early Sunday morning with a loss of seven lives and ten injured, two of whom were probably dead.

A horde of federal, state, county, and railroad detectives were piecing together bits of evidence but apparently had struck no hot trail early in the day.

Suspicion which first leaned toward striking shopmen or their sympathizers had veered around somewhat toward the accident theory this forenoon, it was said. In the building were said to be large quantities of carbide. Whether the water came in contact with the carbide, by accident or design, has not been determined. Three powerful explosions and scores of smaller ones were reported about the time the fire was discovered. So far there is nothing to show that the fire or explosions were caused by a human agency. Survivors tell more or less conflicting stories as to the start of the fire; all agree, however, that when they were first awakened a part of the building was in flames and that the fire spread with dreadful rapidity. A formal report issued by the Pennsylvania railroad says:

"The officials are unable to ascertain the cause of the fire."

Search was continued today for more bodies. The ruins were being cleared away as quickly as possible.

The regular list of names of the 600 men trapped in the bunkhouse is reported destroyed.

At the morgue the seven victims lay unidentified. The bodies are charred beyond recognition. By a process of elimination from one of the Pennsylvania's list, seven names are unaccounted for. The coroner has the seven names and also seven bodies but has no means of fitting any name to any victim.

The Pennsylvania officially announced the fire loss to be $220,000.

District Attorney Harry H. Row and said: "If the facts warrant it the grand jury will investigate this fire. Should facts establish that the fire in which these men lost their lives was of incendiary origin no effort will be shared in apprehending the persons responsible."

AMERICA SHOULD BE PROUD OF RECENT PROSPERITY—DAVIS

Labor Secretary Says
There is No Justification of Bloodshed.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Secretary Davis in a Labor Day message to the American people, declared that "we can look forward with pride and gratitude upon the achievements of the last 12 months" and that during this period "America has been brought to the threshold of an era of unexampled prosperity."

But for the industrial strife which has been evident for several months throughout the country, the secretary added, the outlook of the nation would not have been darkened during the year.

"We must find a common ground of fairness and co-operation for employers and employees where they can adjust their difference without recourse to an appeal to force," he said. "There can be no justification for bloodshed and destruction in America today."

The labor secretary declared that "two great things have been accomplished in American industrial life."

"We have conquered the menace of unemployment, which threatened us," he said, "and we have prevented a wage panic in the ranks of labor. We have put between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 men back to work with wages which leave the general wage level of the nation very little below the high point reached following the war."

Despite the pressure of unemployment, Mr. Davis said, "we have forestalled those short sighted employers who saw in the situation only an opportunity to beat down the price of labor," adding that "through these lines we have brought America to the threshold of an era of unexampled prosperity."

ACID TEST OF INJUNCTION IS NOW EXPECTED

Labor Expected to Lift
Its Voice in Protest
Today.

LEADERS ARE BUSY

Government Representatives
Will Watch Labor
Gatherings Today

Washington, Sept. 2.—Labor day, with its numerous rallies and celebrations in all the states of the union, was expected today to provide the acid test for the Daugherty injunction against railroad strikers.

Throughout the country, labor prepared to lift its voice in one gigantic protest against the most drastic restraining order ever issued by a court of equity in an industrial dispute. The injunction or no injunction labor will speak its mind today, according to the predictions of national leaders.

The national capital was stripped of labor leaders, virtually all of national prominence having speaking engagements elsewhere. Samuel Gompers, was due to deliver an address in Philadelphia, William R. Johnston was scheduled to address a rally at Riverview Park, Baltimore, despite the injunction which enjoins him from saying anything about the strike publicly or privately.

Watching the meetings of labor will be representatives of the government under orders to report any violations of the restraining order to Washington and to Judge Wilkerson's court in Chicago, which fathered the injunction.

Attorney General Daugherty himself was expected back from Chicago and Columbus, today, prepared tomorrow to assume direction of the thousands of federal officers in their efforts to enforce the court's order.

The Daugherty injunction is enforceable in all parts of the United States, it was asserted by department of justice officials, notwithstanding an opinion rendered by Judge Woodruff in Nebraska that the order, having emanated from an Illinois court would be applicable to Illinois only and would have no effect on Nebraska strikers. In the absence of the attorney general his aides refused to comment on the Nebraska decision other than to say it would have no effect on the enforcement of the restraint order in other states.

MAN ELECTROCUTED BY CROSSED WIRES

Dayton, Sept. 4.—Herbert S. Kner, 36, chief electrician for the Miami conservancy district, was electrocuted early Sunday morning on the Stewart street bridge when telephone wires became crossed with high tension wires carrying 6,600 volts of electricity.

Kner's body was found by a fellow workman a few minutes after he stepped into the booth on the bridge to use the telephone. Police worked for a considerable time with the lungmotor to revive him.

Kner was killed on the last night of his employment with the conservancy district.

Relatives said last night he planned to go to Indiana in a few days to set up a dargline for a company which recently purchased it from the district.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Lillian Meals, and three small children.

TO ERECT SHAFT TO MRS. PERSHING

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 4.—A shaft in memorial on the site of the home of General John J. Pershing's mother, in Blount County, has been selected. The stone will weigh around 8,000 pounds and will be hewed from Blount County marble. A fitting inscription will be chiseled into the stone. The stone will be erected at commemorative exercises which will be held on Armistice Day, November 11, on the farm of G. W. Shields, near Maryville, Tenn.

The shaft will be ten feet high, three feet thick and four feet wide. The base of the shaft will be made from old stones gathered from the old Pershing home, which now is a mass of debris.

The memorial committee of the Captain E. J. Jones, Maryville, American Legion post passed a resolution asking the State of Tennessee through its historical society to participate in the erection of the General Pershing memorial.

When General Pershing was in Knoxville to attend the celebration and dedication of the monument to the 11th Infantry, formerly the old Third Tennessee National Guard regiment, he was presented with photographs of the birthplace of his mother and of her marriage license, which had been discovered in the dust of the Blount County courthouse archives.

Bridge Tracks Washed Out

DOCTORS AT SCENE
Ten Coaches Leave Rails—
Other Damage Caused
By Storm

Dayton, Sept. 4.—One hundred and two passengers on Baltimore and Ohio passenger train No. 57, which left Dayton at 7:50 o'clock Sunday morning for Cincinnati, escaped serious injury when the train was derailed north of Middletown.

The wreck was caused by a wash-out of the tracks on a bridge spanning Elk creek, which was swollen to the level of the bridge floor because of excessive rains after mid-night Saturday night.

Other damage estimated at thousands of dollars was caused in Dayton and the Miami Valley by the severe electrical storm which accompanied the rain.

Telephone and power wires were torn down, transformers were burned out, one barn near Drexel was struck by lightning and interurban service on the Cincinnati and Dayton traction line was stopped for several hours, due to the washout of another bridge north of Hamilton.

The wreck near Middletown occurred about 8:45 o'clock. It was caused by rails being loosened by the flood, and spreading when the locomotive drawing the train approached the bridge. The engine was derailed, a draw bar broken, and ten of the eleven coaches of the train also were derailed.

Middletown doctors were rushed to the scene and attended bruises and cuts of the numerous injured. Conductor Wise, in charge of the train, was not hurt.

H. & A. COMPANY SUFFERS LOSS FROM BIG FIRE

$100,000 Worth of Material
Affected In Sunday

More than $100,000 worth of raw material stored in warehouse of the Hoover and Allison Company, was affected by a stubborn blaze caused by lightning during the rain and wind storm early Sunday morning.

STATE TAX COMMISSION WILL LEARN IF PROPERTY IS LISTED AT TRUE VALUE EXAMINERS TO VISIT MANY COUNTIES

Claim 61 Counties Have Not Had Reappraisal of Property Since 1910—Complaint Causes Commission To Act

Columbus, Sept. 4.—The state tax commission is to make a systematic investigation—the first time in years, if not the first, time in the history of the commission—to ascertain whether property in Ohio is on the tax duplicate at its true value in money.

A number of inspectors or examiners are to be employed to visit as many counties as possible to compare tax valuations with actual market values. Certain typical counties, it is planned, will be given more searching investigations than others. The object is two-fold: First, for the information of the tax commission itself, and second for a report on conditions to the next legislature.

Section 5613 of the general code makes it the duty of the tax commission to equalize tax valuations as between counties as well as within counties. Little if anything along this line has ever been done by the commission because of a shortage of employees. Requests for appropriations for the purpose repeatedly have been turned down by the legislature.

Somewhat of an emergency has arisen of late and the state emergency board appropriated $8000 for salaries of equalization examiners. Requests for the appropriation were made by the tax commission recently after a number of public utilities won preliminary steps in suits to enjoin the collection of taxes on valuations fixed by the commission. These concerns do not charge that their properties are on the duplicate at more than their true value in money, but they complain about being discriminated against because other property in the same communities, valuations of which are fixed by county authorities, is on the duplicate at much lower figures. A violation of the uniform rule provision in the constitution is alleged.

For some years there has been a growing complaint because 61 counties refused to make real estate reappraisements, while increases in valuations, in some instances large ones, were imposed in the remaining 27. In the 61 counties there has been no reappraisal since 1910, which was the last year, under the old law requiring reappraisements every four years.

The periodical reappraisal law was repealed on the theory that reappraisal should be a continuous affair, to be undertaken in counties or parts of counties as the necessity for it developed. When officials in few counties did anything in this direction because of local opposition, the legislature in 1919 passed a law authorizing the state tax commission to order reappraisals. Such an order was issued for 61 counties near the end of 1920, just at a time when farm values began to slump. Grange, and farm bureau set up such opposition that ex-Governor Cox and later Governor Davis asked the commission to rescind its orders, which the commission did.

This aroused the ire of counties in which reappraisements had taken place. The auditor of Cuyahoga County retaliated by granting a horizontal reduction of 10 per cent on all real estate. In Clark County a similar cut was made, and in Summit County one of 20 per cent.

Many tax experts say the old system of designating by law the years in which reappraisals shall take place is the best, and one of the big questions before the next legislature will be to say whether, and if so, when, there shall be a general reappraisal of property in Ohio.

It is taken for granted that the representatives from the 61 delinquent counties will oppose such a law, while city delegations may be divided on the subject.

At any rate, the tax commission regards it as its duty to gather and place before the next legislature the fullest information possible on the situation, according to S. E. Forney, chairman. The investigators are to be named soon. Tax commissions in most other states have a corps of examiners who devote all their time the year round to equalizing valuations.

She was jealous of her sweetheart.

Lake, N. Y., Kline killed him. She says she thinks Bergen "got what he was coming to him" and hopes that attacked Mrs. Kline at Saratoga Kline will be acquitted.

SEVEN MEN BURNED TO DEATH, TEN ARE INJURED AND $220,000 WORTH OF DAMAGE WROUGHT IN RAILROAD FIRE

Half Dozen Investigations Started to Trace Cause of Bunkhouse Blaze—Suspicion Turns From Strikers to Accident Theory.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 4.—Half a dozen thorough going investigations were underway today to determine the cause and whether accidental or by design, of the fire which destroyed the commissary building and coach repair shop at 40th street of the Pennsylvania railroad early Sunday morning with a loss of seven lives and ten injured, two of whom probably die.

A horde of federal, state, county, and railroad detectives were piecing together bits of evidence but apparently had struck no hot trail early in the day.

Suspicion which first leaned toward striking shopmen of their sympathizers had veered around some toward the accident theory this forenoon. It was said in the building were said to be large quantity of carbide. Whether the water came in contact with the carbide, by accident or design, has not been determined. Three powerful explosions and scores of smaller ones were reported about the time the fire was discovered. So far there is nothing to show that the fire or explosions were caused by a human agency. Survivors tell more or less conflicting stories as to the start of the fire; all agree, however, that when they were first awakened a part of the building was in flames and that the fire spread with dreadful rapidity. A formal report issued by the Pennsylvania railroad says:

"The officials are unable to ascertain the cause of the fire."

Search was continued today for more bodies. The ruins were being cleared away as quickly as possible. The regular list of names of the 600 men trapped in the bunkhouse is reported destroyed.

At the morgue the seven victims lay unidentified. The bodies are charred beyond recognition. By a process of elimination from one of the Pennsylvania's list, seven names are unaccounted for. The coroner has the seven names and also seven bodies but he has no means of fitting any name to any victim.

The Pennsylvania officially announced the fire loss to be $220,000.

District Attorney Harry H. Row and said: "If the facts warrant it the grand jury will investigate this fire. Should facts establish that the fire in which these men lost their lives was of incendiary origin no effort will be shared in apprehending the persons responsible."

AMERICA SHOULD BE PROUD OF RECENT PROSPERITY—DAVIS

Labor Secretary Says There is No Justification of Bloodshed.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Secretary Davis in a Labor Day message to the American people, declared that "we can look forward with pride and gratification on the achievements of the last 12 months" and that during this period "America has been brought to the threshold of an era of unexampled prosperity."

But for the industrial strife which has been evident for several months throughout the country, the secretary added, the outlook of the nation would not have been darkened during the year.

"We must find a common ground of fairness and co-operation for employers and employees where they can adjust their differences, without recourse to an appeal to force," he said. "There can be no justification for bloodshed and destruction in America today."

The labor secretary declared that "two great things have been accomplished in American industrial life." "We have conquered the menace of unemployment, which threatened us," he said, "and we have prevented a wage panic in the ranks of labor. We have put between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 men back to work with wages which leave the general wage level of the nation very little below the high point reached following the war."

Despite the pressure of unemployment, Mr. Davis said, "we have forestalled those short sighted employers who saw in the situation only an opportunity to beat down the price of labor," adding that "through these lines, we have brought America to the threshold of an era of unexampled prosperity."

ACID TEST OF INJUNCTION IS NOW EXPECTED

Labor Expected to Lift
Its Voice in Protest
Today.

LEADERS ARE BUSY

Government Representatives
Will Watch Labor
Gatherings Today

Washington, Sept. 2.—Labor day, with its numerous rallies and celebrations in all the states of the union, was expected today to provide the acid test for the Daugherty injunction against railroad strikers.

Throughout the country, labor prepared to lift its voice in one grand protest against the most drastic restraining order ever issued by a court of equity in an industrial dispute. The injunction or no injunction labor will speak its mind today, according to the predictions of national leaders.

The national capital was stripped of labor leaders, virtually all of national prominence, having speaking engagements elsewhere. Samuel Gompers, was due to deliver an address in Philadelphia. William K. Johnston was scheduled to address a rally at Riverview Park, Baltimore, despite the injunction which enjoins him from saying anything about the strike publicly or privately.

Watching the meetings of labor will be representatives of the government under orders to report any violations of the restraining order to Washington and to Judge Wilkerson's court in Chicago, which fathered the injunction.

Attorney General Daugherty himself was expected back from Chicago and Columbus, today, prepared tomorrow to assume direction of the thousands of federal officers in their efforts to enforce the court's order.

The Daugherty injunction is enforceable in all parts of the United States, it was asserted by department of justice officials, notwithstanding an opinion rendered by Judge Woodruff in Nebraska that the order, having emanated from an Illinois court would be applicable to Illinois only and would have no effect on Nebraska strikers. In the absence of the attorney general his aides refused to comment on the Nebraska decision other than to say it would have no effect on the enforcement of the restraint order in other states.

MAN ELECTROCUTED BY CROSSED WIRES

Dayton, Sept. 4.—Herbert S. Knerr 36, chief electrician for the Miami conservancy district, was electrocuted early Sunday morning on the Stewart street bridge when telephone wires became crossed with high tension wires carrying 6,600 volts of electricity.

Knerr's body was found by a fellow workman a few minutes after he stepped into the booth on the bridge to use the telephone. Police worked for a considerable time with the lungmotor to revive him.

Knerr was killed on the last night of his employment with the conservancy district.

Relatives said last night he planned to go to Indiana in a few days to set up a dragline for a company which recently purchased it from the district.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Lillian Meals, and three small children.

TO ERECT SHAFT TO MRS. PERSHING

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 4.—A shaft in memorial on the site of the home of General John J. Pershing's mother, in Blount County, has been selected. The stone will weigh around 8,000 pounds and will be hewed from Blount County marble. A fitting inscription will be chiseled into the stone. The stone will be erected at commemorative exercises which will be held on Armistice Day, November 11, on the farm of G. W. Shields, near Maryville, Tenn.

The shaft will be ten feet high, three feet thick and four feet wide. The base of the shaft will be made from old stones gathered from the old Pershing home, which now is a mass of debris.

The memorial committee of the Captain E. J. Jones, Maryville, American Legion post passed a resolution asking the State of Tennessee through its historical society to participate in the erection of the General Pershing memorial.

When General Pershing was in Knoxville to attend the celebration and dedication of the monument to the 117th Infantry, formerly the old Third Tennessee National Guard regiment, he was presented with photographs of the birthplace of his mother, and of her marriage license, which had been discovered in the dust of the Blount County courthouse archives.

YELLOW SPRINGS WINS FROM BAYLIFFS IN GOOD GAME 3-0

Enjoying one big inning when they made merry over the delivery of "Lefty" Cooper, the Yellow Springs Athletics, much heralded, came here Sunday afternoon, grabbed off their ball game with the Bayliff Electricians by a 3-0 score, and departed with their reputation as bright as ever.

In this one festive inning, the fifth, the Yellow Springs lads seemed able momentarily to solve the offerings of the electricians' forkhander. In all other frames the visitors were helpless at the bat, but they connected for five safeties and all three of their runs in this one big inning.

In the meantime, the locals were having their trouble with Harold Little, the excollegian. Little held the electricians to seven safeties, and these he kept safely scattered. A pair of hits in the second and again in the fifth, were not enough in a row for the locals to count any runs, and they were forced to accept the uncontestable of a verdict of a shut out. At that fans were treated to the best ball game of the year, the teams playing real baseball throughout.

Although the visitors got two hits in the opening stanza, it was no better for them. Young and Northup each scratched hits in the opener, but Young died at third, while Northup was nipped off second, and Little and Day were easy outs. Bockett opened the first with a single for the locals, but he was caught trying to stretch it. In the second the Bayliffs got two hits. Cooper led off with a single, and Starkey and Dixon fanned. Then Westercamp singled but Cooper was caught off second and Fuller was tossed out by Little. In the fourth Little doubled to left with one gone, but Day and Stevens were retired without trouble.

Bales opened the fifth with a single between center and right, and took second when McDonald beat out an infield hit. Hackett was tossed out by Ritter and McDonald was caught napping off second. Fess, however, singled to left and took second on a wild pitch on which Bales scored. Young walked, and Fess and Young both scored when Northup singled to center. Little doubled to left, but Northup was held at third where he died when Day filed out. This ended the scoring. The visitors did not get another hit until the eighth, when Day doubled with two gone and was stranded.

In the locals' half of the fifth, Westercamp singled and Fuller sacrificed him to second. Tucker fanned and Bockett singled to center, but Westercamp was out on the relay trying to score, for the third out. Fuller singled in the seventh but was forced at second for the third. Bockett singled in the eighth with none gone, but was left stranded on the paths when his team mates could do nothing to bring him in.

The lineups: Bayliffs—Bockett, 1b, Drake, lf, Ritter, 3b, Cooper, p, Starkey, rf, Dixon c, Westercamp, ss, Fuller, cf, Tucker 2b, Yellow Springs—Young, c, Northup, cf, Little, p, Day, 2b, Stevens, ss, Bales, 1b, McDonald, lf, Hackett, 3b, Fess, rf.

The score:

RUSSIA NOW HAS LEGAL DEPARTMENT SIMILAR TO U. S.

Moscow, Sept. 00.—A regular attorney general's office similar in function to that official in the United States is now established in Russia by a decree just announced. This takes the place of all special forms of investigation and prosecution and absorbs under it the various special departments which have been doing such work in the past.

The function of the office is, as in the United States, to give advice to Government departments and institutions in order to keep their decrees and acts in accordance with the fundamental law of the Republic, and to investigate and prosecute crime. The People's Commissar for Justice, whose chief task hitherto has been the preparation of laws, now receives this additional work as Attorney-General or "chief procurator," with power to appoint deputies in each separate state of the Republic. Prosecutors in revolutionary tribunals and military tribunals also come under him hereafter.

Paid lawyers are now also admitted, and, in fact, a college of lawyers is recognized, similar of the "bar" in the United States, which may receive, expel or discipline its own members. Poor people pay nothing for such legal aid; Government or co-operative employees pay according to fixed scale, but all others arrange their own terms with their lawyers.

It is not necessary for a man to have a regular lawyer as his counsel in a case, but he can no longer have anyone he chooses. He can be defended by a relative, a representative of a state institution, trade union or co-operative, or some person having special connection with his case. But if he chooses a complete outsider as counsel he must take a regular qualified lawyer.

BIG MOMENT IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

Forest Hills, L. I., Sept. 4.—The big moment of the Davis cup drama has arrived. The concluding matches of the challenge round will be played this afternoon in the West Side club enclosure and the occasion will be quite dramatic or quite disinteresting according to the run of the play.

In other words, it will be an ante climax. The drama will come in the event that Gerald L. Patterson of Australia disposes, of William M. Johnston of America in the first of two single matches scheduled. That would make the score stand 2 all in matches and send William T. Tilden II, American champion and James O. Anderson, the Australian, out of the courts to face the inevitable.

A victory for Anderson would mean then that the globe trotter trophy would start overland to the coast; and thence across the Pacific to the land of the southern cross. A victory for Tilden would send the cup back to the trophy rooms of the United States Lawn Tennis Association where it has lain these two years.

It is possible, even probable that the situation will never get that far, however. Johnston can relieve all pressure by beating Patterson in the opening match and since he holds two decisions over the Anzac champion in as many starts, the contingency is not at all improbable.

FARMER IS BEAR WITH THE WOMEN

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 5.—The strange influence of a Cadillac farmer, "six feet tall and handsome," over women was brought to light here by the arrest of Clarence Warner and two married women in a prettily furnished "love nest" containing but one bedroom.

All he had to do, was to say, "Come," and they came, was the explanation given of his magnetic powers.

The "love nest" was discovered by F. Hyatt and I. E. Sleeper, husbands of the two women, after a three-day search for their missing wives.

When the irate husbands walked in on the "love nest" they found their wives and Warner chatting easily and apparently perfectly contented with their lot. When the trio were taken to the police station the women continued their pleasant conversation with the police, but totally ignored their husbands.

"We did nothing wrong," was all they would say, and when they were arraigned in the police court they waived examination and were bound over to the Superior Court.

"My wife and I were happy until Warner came to town," said Sleeper.

"He always came around to our house. I rather liked him at first, but then I noticed my wife acting rather queerly every time he visited the house.

"Then she started going out nights, leaving our two infants with me. At other times she took them with her. I pleaded with her to settle down, and told her the whole town was talking about her, but she just laughed at me.

XENIA TO SPEND DAY QUIETLY

The last holiday of the summer, marking the closing of parks and other summer amusements, found many pleasure seekers forming parties in celebration of the waning summer days. Business houses of the city and the offices closed for the day.

OHIO WOMAN DIES AS AUTO PLUNGES OVER CATARACT

Buffalo, Sept. 4.—An automobile plunged over the cliff near the cataract at Niagara Falls yesterday and was dashed to pieces 200 feet below on the river's margin. Mrs. Agatha Miller, 54 years old, wife of D. H. Miller, Cleveland, fell to her death with the car. Her body was found on the water's edge.

The accident happened just north of the upper steel arch bridge. Mrs. Miller was alone in the car in the rear seat. The car was parked on the grass near the customs office at the American edge of the bridge, facing the river, on a slight slope. There is no guard rail at the cliff edge. The owner and driver of the car, Edward Meyers of Buffalo, had left it, as he thought safely parked.

For some reason it began to slip down the slope and Mrs. Miller, who was of very heavy build, realized her danger. Her screams aroused the bystanders and two men, Harry Andrew a negro of Buffalo, and Joseph Goldberg of No. 487 Queen St., West, Toronto, grabbed the rear fenders and strove desperately to stop the car. They kept their holds until it reached the very brink and plunged into the gorge.

Mrs. Miller tried to extract herself but she was not quick enough.

ONLY FOOD AND COAL ON HOCKING VALLEY

Columbus, Sept. 4.—Declaring that their road was being swamped by freight transfers from other roads, officials of the Hocking Valley railway company today announced that the Hocking Valley railroad company would carry no freight except foodstuffs and coal until further notice. Permission for such an embargo was recently granted in interstate commerce commission's service order No. 23. Other Ohio railroads, it is said, are contemplating a similar move.

COURT OFFICERS AT HERRIN "TAKING THEIR LIVES IN THEIR HANDS."

The first indictment for murder in connection with the Herrin massacre was returned by the Grand Jury with unexpected promptness. The indicted man is alleged to have shot and killed Cline K. McDowell, superintendent of the strip mine and leader of the strike-breakers, who surrendered and then were put to death. McDowell was the first victim of the mob, and his killing was the signal for the dispatch of the others. The indicted man's arrest was immediately ordered by Judge Hartwell, and a deputy sheriff was sent to take him prisoner, after which his identity will be disclosed.

The prosecuting authorities urged the indictment because the man was reported to be disposing of his property preparatory to flight. Attorney General Brundage said: "This rapid-fire indictment shows the temper of the Grand Jury. I am delighted."

On the eve of the Illinois Attorney General's arrival at Marion he himself experienced a manifestation of the reign of terror which the lawless element seeks to enact. An anonymous letter signed "Committee" warned Mr. Brundage to "beware." It dubbed him "a rank outsider" who had "no business" intruding upon the affairs of "men who are only defending their own interests." The letter said the Attorney General would do well to "watch your step, damn you," and threatened that "we'll get you if you don't."

Mr. Brundage says the communication is important as revealing the atmosphere in which the Grand Jury investigation is proceeding. Many law-abiding citizens summoned to tell of the massacre are found to be suffering from "loss of memory" or addicted to such downright evasion and obvious suppression that the prosecuting authorities now and then have to pry open their lips by quoting the Illinois perjury statutes.

Despite such handicaps, the Attorney General and States Attorney Duty, a local man but untried, are confident many more indictments are in certain prospect. Judge Hartwell is equally assured in his own mind that at the proper time convictions will ensue.

Already citizens are speculating as to the chance of trouble when deputy sheriffs are sent out to arrest indicted men. Everybody conjures up the possibility of a clash if union miners, and especially union leaders, are found among the indicted.

WILL GERMANY GO BACK TO PRUSSIANISM, OR HAS SHE CAST IT OFF FOREVER?

By Raymond Recouly, Foreign Editor Paris Figaro.—"Since the war I have been in Germany every year. I have made rather a long sojourn there, trying to see as many Germans as possible—writers, journalists, artists, politicians, officials—discussing political and economic questions freely with them. The political situation in Germany can be summed up, in my opinion, as an unstable equilibrium between the conservatives and the democratic forces—between the parties of the Right and of the Left. Nobody can say at the present moment which of those forces will win. The evolution toward democracy, the movement in favor of the republic, reposes in Germany on a very solid basis. It is not purely fictitious, 'camouflaged,' as many Frenchmen are too often given to thinking, but, on the contrary, it has the bulk of the people behind it. First of all, the great masses of the workmen are thoroughly united, well disciplined, obeying hand and foot the orders of their trades unions. In a great industrial and manufacturing country like Germany that force is far greater than it is in France. You may add to those working classes the traders, the clerks, a great many peasants, except in Bavaria, where the peasantry is clerical and monarchical. Government officials of the minor ranks and some of the middle classes who, being satisfied with the new order of things, have no wish to return to the old order.

"On the other hand, you have very active and powerful reactionary and monarchist minorities. They comprise all the Junkers, who were the ruling classes of old Prussia and, thereby, of the whole of Germany. They have not only lost their influences but very often their fortunes as well. The chief Government officials and the military are all enemies to the republic. The status of the officers is particularly painful. A great number of them, having been dismissed from the army, are neither willing nor able to make a living wage in any other walk of life. A great many of them have nothing to lose and all to gain from any political adventure. They are always ready to join some conspiracy."

LADY ASTOR FIGHTS FOR TEMPERANCE.

That Lady Astor is approaching a point where she may be hailed as the "militant" leader of the temperance forces in England is evidenced by her activities in the cause of liquor reform since she sponsored the Liquor-Control Bill, which provides an easy road to the abolition of the liquor traffic if adopted.

Her latest effort in behalf of prohibition is a pamphlet which, according to its title, is designed only to defend temperance reformers from the charge of being cranks, but in reality is filled with accusations and statistics condemning the liquor trade, and contains a call to the younger generation to provide a fresh impetus which will make "sound public opinion and progressive legislation possible."

In the first section of her appeal for this new interest Lady Astor makes an unglorified attack on the organization and tactics of the liquor trade.

"The liquor traffic in England is probably more highly and thoroughly organized for political purposes than the steel, oil or meat trust in America," she says, "and any careful observer of public bodies will have noted that spokesmen and defenders of the drink traffic almost invariably are identified with those who oppose attempts to deal with immorality in the slums and other social evils. There is no doubt of the fact that in order to safeguard its position and profits the liquor trade does use its funds and organization in a way prejudicial to healthy public life."

"Teachers," she says, "can and do wield a great influence on public opinion in the matter of temperance, and they could almost change the attitude of the next generation if they concentrated on doing it."

Finally, she explains her viewpoint of temperance reformers by saying: "Temperance reformers are not actuated so much by a desire to make other people good as by a determination not to be responsible for making other people bad by subjecting them to subtle temptations which many have no chance of resisting."

1902--Twenty Years Ago--1922

The report comes that Mr. John Bryan will erect a modern hotel on his lot near the railroad in Yellow Springs. This is good news for the people there, as no town in the State is more in need of such a necessity as a good modern hotel.

The reunion of the St. John family is being held today at the home of D. M. St. John, of the city.

County Treasurer Asa Little is taking a day off from his duties and is in attendance at the State Fair.

The Xenia and Wilmington traction company is getting ready to open an office in this city. The promoters of the road seem to be much in earnest in pushing the line through and the survey which is now being made will cost several thousand dollars.

THE ATTRACTIVE HOUSEWIFE

There never has been a time when a housekeeper could look so attractive as the present. One reason for this is a continued liking for the one-color reason is that cotton goods are no longer scarce and expensive, as they were for a number of years.

Materials now are more beautiful than anything known since the old days of hand looms and block printing. The loveliest of these present day cottons are hand printed, their colors so blending as to give the effect of some old hand prints that have been packed away for a century. And these materials are not only sold by the yard, but can be found made up in completed frocks at any sum from offering them as a suggestion for dresses that are better suited to the housekeeper's needs. Now as the season wanes, on many bargain counters will be found the light weight cottons or the new cotton prints, equally beautiful in design and coloring. Three or four yards, at 50 cents a yard, makes up a frock that will not only wash well, but be so picturesque as to transform into a veritable eye feast many a woman who has looked uninteresting in her other dresses.

Discouraged—The fine hair that grows on the arms and hands can be kept from becoming conspicuous by use of a bleach such as peroxide of hydrogen.

Cherry—The eyelash formula will be mailed to you if you desire it. When requesting this include a stamped addressed envelope.

M. K. M.—Lace a fine toothed comb and use it on your hair, keeping it wet all the time by dipping in vinegar. This will remove the shells but if vermin are left use kerosene.

Margaret—If you are too thin build yourself up and the bust and neck will fill out also. Massage with cocoa butter.

Anna—Your hair seems a lovely Titian shade to me. If the eyebrows are faded rub them with castor oil each night. It will help bring back the original color.

Cleveland, Sept. 4.—Mary Schmidt, 21, was killed and Donna Martin, 26, seriously injured when the machine in which they were riding with two young men overturned after a collision with another machine, on Rocky Ridge, three miles west of Rocky River. The men were cut and bruised. The men gave their names to the police as Sterling Burns and J. A. Penfield of Willoughby. Penfield was driving according to the police and is the son of L. W. Penfield, head of the Hatfield and Penfield Steel Company.

The women were taken to Lakewood hospital where Miss Schmidt died from a fractured skull and severe bruises. The other woman is suffering from a wrenched back, a lacerated forehead and eye and minor bruises.

COURT OFFICERS AT HERRIN "TAKING THEIR LIVES IN THEIR HANDS."

The first indictment for murder in connection with the Herrin massacre was returned by the Grand Jury with unexpected promptness. The indicted man is alleged to have shot and killed Cline K. McDowell, superintendent of the strip mine and leader of the strike-breakers, who surrendered and then were put to death. McDowell was the first victim of the mob, and his killing was the signal for the dispatch of the others. The indicted man's arrest was immediately ordered by Judge Hartwell, and a deputy sheriff was sent to take him prisoner, after which his identity will be disclosed.

The prosecuting authorities urged the indictment because the man was reported to be disposing of his property preparatory to flight. Attorney General Brundage said: "This rapid-fire indictment shows the temper of the Grand Jury. I am delighted."

On the eve of the Illinois Attorney General's arrival at Marion he himself experienced a manifestation of the reign of terror which the lawless element seeks to enact. An anonymous letter signed "Committee" warned Mr. Brundage to "beware." It dubbed him "a rank outsider" who had "no business" intruding upon the affairs of "men who are only defending their own interests." The letter said the Attorney General would do well to "watch your step, damn you," and threatened that "we'll get you if you don't."

Mr. Brundage says the communication is important as revealing the atmosphere in which the Grand Jury investigation is proceeding. Many law-abiding citizens summoned to tell of the massacre are found to be suffering from "loss of memory" or addicted to such downright evasion and obvious suppression that the prosecuting authorities now and then have to pry open their lips by quoting the Illinois perjury statutes.

Despite such handicaps, the Attorney General and States Attorney Duty, a local man but unfettered, are confident many more indictments are in certain prospect. Judge Hartwell is equally assured in his own mind that at the proper time convictions will ensue.

Already citizens are speculating as to the chance of trouble when deputy sheriffs are sent out to arrest indicted men. Everybody conjures up the possibility of a clash if union miners, and especially union leaders, are found among the indicted.

WILL GERMANY GO BACK TO PRUSSIANISM, OR HAS SHE CAST IT OFF FOREVER?

By Raymond Recouly, Foreign Editor Paris Figaro.—"Since the war I have been in Germany every year. I have made rather a long sojourn there, trying to see as many Germans as possible—writers, journalists, artists, politicians, officials—discussing political and economic questions freely with them. The political situation in Germany can be summed up, in my opinion, as an unstable equilibrium between the conservatives and the democratic forces—between the parties of the Right and of the Left. Nobody can say at the present moment which of those forces will win. The evolution toward democracy, the movement in favor of the republic, reposes in Germany on a very solid basis. It is not purely fictitious, 'camouflaged,' as many Frenchmen are too often given to thinking, but, on the contrary, it has the bulk of the people behind it. First of all, the great masses of the workmen are thoroughly united, well disciplined, obeying hand and foot the orders of their trades unions. In a great industrial and manufacturing country like Germany that force is far greater than it is in France. You may add to those working classes the traders, the clerks, a great many peasants, except in Bavaria, where the peasantry is clerical and monarchical. ## H. & A. COMPANY SUFFERS BIG LOSS is 100 by 180 feet in size. Fire doors prevented the blaze from spreading to adjoining ware rooms. Damage to the building will be slight being confined mostly to windows smashed by firemen through which to throw water and to permit the smoke to escape. Because the floor is below the ground level, the immense amount of water thrown backed up in the building two feet deep, hindering the work of the fire fighters, and spreading so that level under fire doors into adjoining ware houses, where it damaged bales of raw material on the bottom of the piles. The building in which the fire was located contained about 4,000 bales of raw material, of an estimated value of about $100,000 not including bales from water in other rooms. The fire started in the northwest corner.

Officials of the company were notified shortly after the fire started, and a crew of workmen was started at work as soon as possible, getting the raw material out of the building and spreading it in the fields for drying purposes. The degree of loss depends to a great extent on how soon this material can be dried properly, while efforts have not yet been made to get at the water-soaked bales in adjoining ware houses, and a damage estimate on them cannot be placed.

The fire will not halt operations at the mills here, officials of the company say. The company has plenty of raw material here and in transit to prevent a shut-down. On the contrary, the Ohio Mill which has been closed since August 12, will reopen Tuesday morning as will also mills of the company at North Kansas City, Mo., which have been closed for repairs for about three weeks.

Ten Good Shepherd nuns and 50 patients were in the flaming structure and all were removed without injury. The cause of the fire was not determined.

HEAVY TOLL IN DAMAGE TAKEN BY EARLY SUNDAY MORNING STORM; TWO FIRES

Two fires started by lightning, impaired telephone service, and damage to crops, represent the toll exacted by a severe electrical, wind and rain storm that broke over Xenia and Greene County about one o'clock Sunday morning.

Firemen fought a stubborn blaze in a raw material ware house of the Hoover and Allison Co., Cincinnati avenue, as a result of the electrical display, the conflagration breaking out in the oil soak sals and manila keeping firefighters busy until Sunday afternoon.

On the John Tollinger farm, on the Xenia and Fairfield pike, a large frame barn with all of its contents of unthreshed wheat and oats, a quantity of hay and farm implements, was destroyed, when a bolt of lightning struck the building at one o'clock. Other buildings fired from sparks were saved.

Telephone companies reported nothing more than the usual amount of line trouble following the storm. Service was impaired on both company's lines in some parts of the county, and linemen of the Citizen's Company were busy fixing the lines Sunday.

Extensive damage was felt by the Dayton Power and Light Company as a result of the storm. Light service over the entire county and surrounding country was impeded, including Emory Chapel, Bellbrook, Alpha, South Charleston and Xenia.

Linemen were kept busy all day Sunday, the damage not being fully repaired Monday.

Some parts of the county report severe damage from the heavy wind and rain that knocked over corn, and will make a part of the corn crop a total loss.

The storm heralded its approach for several hours before its arrival, with brilliant lightning display in the south all Saturday evening. It struck Xenia about one o'clock and continued with unabated fury for more than an hour. After that the storm subsided somewhat, but rain continued until after seven o'clock Sunday morning.

The heavy rainfall did not lower the temperature very much and Sunday was hot and sticky.

LEO WELCH HURT IN AUTO CRASH

MORE CONTRIBUTED RECIPES FROM READERS.

The following Column Readers have very generously sent in their best recipes, for me to publish to help other women:

Mrs. G. H.: "Johnny Cake: Mix together one heaping teaspoon of cornmeal, one-half cup of white flour, one teaspoon of baking soda and one teaspoon of salt; sift these dry ingredients thoroughly. Now add one large tablespoon of sour cream and wet the mixture with sweet milk, using enough to make quite a soft dough. Turn it into buttered pans and let it stand a few hours before you bake it. I find it is all right to wet it with sour milk and set it away from noon till supper time, then bake it for about 20 minutes.

Brown Bread: Mix and sift together one cup each of rye (or graham) flour, cornmeal and wheat flour, and one teaspoon each of soda and salt. Wet up with sour milk about like 'stirred cake,' and bake for one hour in a moderate oven (the time of baking is less in a gas oven.)"

Mrs. F.: "Bread Rolls: Put into your mixing bowl two pints of bread flour. Make a hole in the centre of this flour and put into the hole one cup of yeast (good strength) saved from baking bread; add to the yeast one cup of sweet milk which has been scalded and then cooled to the lukewarm stage, and also one table-spoon each of sugar and salt. Let this sponge rise, in the middle of the flour, till light; then add two beaten eggs and two tablespoons of melted butter, and stir all the contents of the bowl well together. (flour included.) Now turn the dough out onto a floured board and knead well. Have one cup of flour on the board, to be worked into the dough during kneading. When well kneaded, let the mass rise again, till very light, then either cut into biscuits one inch high, or shape it into small rolls with the hands. Place these rolls or biscuits in a greased pan and let them rise again, till almost double in bulk. Then bake for 35 minutes in a good oven. They should be a nice brown when done."

A Reader Friend: "My Favorite White Cake: Cream one-fourth cup of butter with one cup of granulated sugar; add one-half cup of sweet milk, two egg-yolks, one and one-half cups of flour sifted with two teaspoons of baking powder, then fold in the stiffly-whipped whites of two eggs. Use any flavoring desired. Turn into two buttered layer-cake pans and bake for 30 minutes in a hot oven."

Spice Cake: Cream together one cup of butter (or lard) and one cup of sugar. Stir one cup of sour milk and one-half teaspoon of soda dissolved in a very little hot water. Now add two cups of flour with which you have sifted one teaspoon of baking powder, one teaspoon of ground cinnamon and one-half teaspoon each of ground nutmeg, cloves and allspice. Either bake in layers as above directed, or in cup-cake tins for 15 minutes in a hot oven, or in loaf form for 40 minutes in a moderate oven."

COATS STOLEN FROM AUTO RECOVERED

Police recovered several men's coats and other apparel stolen from automobiles parked on Washington Street, during the progress of the ball game, at the Washington St. Park Sunday afternoon.

Thieves who had rifled the machines took the coats and other apparel out and hid them in the John T. Barnett sawmill yard near by. Police found them there later. There were no arrests.

Ohio Wesleyan's Contribution to the Church

In Methodism, Ohio Wesleyan is aptly called "The Mother of Bishops". After Luccock and McCabe great men whose light still shines undimmed, come Bishops Anderson, Hoss, Hughes, McConnell, McDowell and Thirkfield. Three of her Presidents, Thompson, Bashford, and Welch, have been elevated to the episcopacy.

John R. Mott says that Ohio Wesleyan has sent out more missionaries than any other American co-educational school, yet only one-fifth of her students are preparing for religious work. The number of theological students furnished by the college is not surpassed by any other school.

These Christian characters have made the name of America blessed in the far corners of the Earth through the message of human sympathy they bore and the lives of service they lived.

is 100 by 180 feet, in size. Fire doors prevented the blaze from spreading to adjoining ware rooms. Damage to the building will be slight, being confined mostly to windows smashed by firemen through which to throw water and to permit the smoke to escape. Because the floor is below the ground level, the immense amount of water thrown backed up in the building two feet deep, hindering the work of the fire fighters, and spreading to that level under fire doors into adjoining ware houses, where it damaged bales of raw material on the bottom of the piles. The building in which the fire was located contained about 4,000 bales of raw material, of an estimated value of about $100,000, not including bales from water in other rooms. The fire started in the northwest corner.

Officials of the company were notified shortly after the fire started, and a crew of workmen was started at work as soon as possible, getting the raw material out of the building and spreading it in the fields for drying purposes. The degree of loss depends to a great extent on how soon this material can be dried properly, while efforts have not yet been made to get at the water-soaked bales in adjoining ware houses, and a damage estimate on them cannot be placed.

The fire will not halt operations at the mills here, officials of the company say. The company has plenty of raw material here and in transit to prevent a shut-down. On the contrary, the Ohio Mill which has been closed since August 12, will reopen Tuesday morning as will also mills of the company at North Kansas City, Mo., which have been closed for repairs for about three weeks.

Quebec, Sept. 4.—Two children were born to patients of LaMiseriorde Hospital during the progress of a fire early yesterday in which the interior of the building was destroyed and inmates had to be removed hurriedly.

Ten Good Shepherd nuns and 50 patients were in the flaming structure and all were removed without injury. The cause of the fire was not determined.

She says she will not tell too much, but here are some of the things she does say: That a woman usually has the last word; that the most appreciative telephone patrons are the wealthy and those used to luxury and the movie folks; that the most troublesome are lounge lizards and their friends, and that the worst of all are people who believe a telephone system never gets out of order.

PLANS TO LAUGH AT COAL STRIKERS

Joseph Watrous Prosser, formerly a school teacher, of Carolina, R. I., has invented what he calls a water fuel, which is hailed as a substitute for coal. Prosser, who is eighty two has been developing his invention for years. Elbridge Gerry Snow, President of the Home Insurance Co., and other business men are backing him. The new fuel is obtained by using the oxygen element of disintegrated water and crude oil at a temperature of 900 degrees Fahrenheit.

NATION TACKLES $2,000,000,000 BUILDING DEFICIT

Shortage in Residences and Stores Brings Greatest Boom in Building

Two billions of dollars is the valuation placed by economists upon the stores and residences that should have been constructed to provide for the country's normal development between 1914 and 1922. Consequently that colossal figure measures the shortage we have inherited from the days when soaring construction costs made building unprofitable, and when men and materials were being diverted to war purposes.

The chart shown above, based on the building permits issued the last 20 years in a score of the largest cities, indicates how nearly the country approached complete building stagnation. In 1918 the curve approached closest its base line. With construction at almost 90 per cent below normal, the country was supplying a little more than a tenth of the buildings it needed.

Economists are finding that most business and industrial activities move in cycles. From an examination of records it appears that normal and subnormal periods are followed at regular intervals by "boom" or "peak" years. The chart shows how true this "law of cycles" is of the building trades. Beginning in 1903 we note the "peaks" in 1906, 1909, 1913, 1916, 1919 and 1922. The line was continuously below normal, and the need for new building became increasingly acute. Since building activity now sweeping the country could have been predicted three years ago.

In future years it is not to be expected that the line will fall to any great extent. However it may fluctuate, it must remain in the area of abnormally high activity. From 1903 to 1911 it rose and fell without wandering far from the normal line. Surpluses balanced deficits and no appreciable shortage could accumulate. But after 1914 they recur regularly at three or four year intervals. The phenomenal building activity now sweeping the country could have been predicted three years ago.

The deficit is mainly in stores and residences. In relieving the shortage that exists in this type of construction alone, workmen who are really skilled in the building trades will find continuous and profitable employment for years to come.

BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE RESULT OF LIGHTNING SUNDAY

Fire and lightning caused the destruction of a large barn on the farm of John Tollinger, Xenia, Fairfield pike, early Sunday morning with all its contents.

Although estimates of the probable loss could not be obtained it is believed that heavy damage resulted in the destruction of the building. The fire started at one o'clock from a bolt of lightning during the severe storm and although it was discovered almost immediately, efforts to save the structure were unavailing.

Included in the contents destroyed were the entire crops of wheat and oats, not yet threshed, and of unestimated value, a considerable quantity of hay, and all the farm implements. Two calves, representing the only live stock left in the barn, were saved.

Neighbors who saw the flames offered assistance and were instrumental in saving the residence and two out-buildings which were fired by sparks. The building and contents were only partly protected by insurance.

NAMES OF GOLD STAR MOTHERS WANTED

Ohio will pay tribute to its Gold Star Mothers at the conventions of the State American Legion and its women's auxiliary in Dayton, Sept. 11, 12, 13 and 14th.

They will occupy places of honor side by side with the distinguished guests from all sections of the United States in the reviewing stand in front of the Dayton court house, from which the American Legion parade will be viewed.

The Dayton convention committee wishes the names and addresses of all Gold Star Mothers in the state. It is requested that they be mailed to the convention headquarters in the Hotel Gibbons, Dayton, at once, in order that adequate reservations may be made.

Styles BY LENORE

Satin, the color of a delicate pink shell, is made low of waist, with surplice bodice, and is slashed at the side to reveal a finely pleated foundation of chiffon. In such a frock may this season's debutante dance and dine, and feel assured of a style which will be chic throughout the season. There is no blouse to the bodice, and the skirt, too, is entirely flat, all the edges being self-bound and the only trimming appears in the girdle which is embroidered with glittering crystals beads and silver thread.

The same idea of a skirt open at the side revealing the foundation is used also in some of the new day-time dresses. Only the foundation is made in a contrasting color.

A Stenographer's Romance

BY JANE PHELPS

NELLIE IS INTRODUCED TO THE BOARDERS

Chapter 61
Mrs. Doty had informed Nellie that meals were ready when she heard the gong and that her guests were all very prompt in taking their places at table. What a "gong" was Nellie did not know, but when she heard the three strokes—unmusical, she hurried down to dinner.

"This place is for you," the waitress told her, pointing to a vacant space between an old lady and a young one—the former a sweet looking woman with a kindly expression; the latter a thin, angular female whom Nellie at once decided she did not like.

"She makes me think of vinegar or something pucker," she said to herself, as she sat down feeling a bit awkward, "but the old lady's nice."

The guests at Mrs. Doty's all sat at one long table. "The dining room," she carefully explained to every new arrival, "was too small to admit of any other arrangement." Gradually the people filed in and took their places, and Nellie, interested, sized each one up—the usual semi-prosperous sort who live in the better class New York boarding house, such as this, an elderly couple, several women of uncertain ages, two or three younger ones, a couple of middle-aged men who looked tired and uninteresting.

Nellie noticed the place directly opposite her own was vacant, also the one Miss Jones occupied. Suddenly the street door opened, then closed noisily. A young man with heavy dark hair, through which he ran his fingers as he crossed the room, took this vacant seat, cheerily saying kept her eyes on her plate. Every "Good evening" with a comprehensive glance that included everyone at the table. He appeared to be about 25 years old.

Nellie was surprised and puzzled at the change in the company upon his entrance. The old lady next to her beamed at him. The vinegary one to the other, side straightened up and smirked. The others either smiled or asked him a question.

He looked inquiringly at Nellie and admiration flashing in his eyes.

The old lady leaned to her and said "My name's Roberts, my dear, Mrs. Roberts. What shall I call you?"

"Nellie Riley."

"Nellie is a pretty name. I judge you are Irish." A few months back Nellie would have replied with some witticism as to its not being French or Spanish. Now she only said:

"Yes, I'm Irish. But I was born in America."

"That is self-evident," Mrs. Roberts said with a smile. Then she bent forward a little and attracting the young man's attention said:

"This is Miss Riley, Mr. Horne. She has come to live with us."

"We are very fortunate," he replied bowing. The acid one sniffed, while the others watched curiously. Then Mrs. Roberts added: "Ladies and gentlemen, Miss Riley has taken Miss Hunter's room and intends to remain."

She had extracted this much from Nellie.

They all bowed and smiled across the table, some muttering "glad to meet you," and other customary remarks. Nellie flushed crimson at being the cynosure of so many eyes but smiled in return. But after that she time she raised them, however, Mr. Horne was, or seemed to be, looking at her through the disfiguring goggles he wore.

"Wouldn't Cora be surprised if she could see how meek I am," Nellie said to herself as she ate the food set before her; very good it seemed to be, although she heard grumbling from others. "I haven't said my soul's my own since I came here. I'll forget how to talk if this keeps up."

But Nellie was the only quiet one. It seemed to her they all talked at once. The questions put to the young spectacled Mr. Horne piped her curiosity.

"Anything exciting happen today?" one asked.

"No, nothing unusual so far. But the day is young. I have hopes."

What could he mean? Nellie wondered. Hopes of something exciting happening. Mrs. Roberts saw the question in Nellie's eyes and whispered:

"Mr. Horne is a newspaper reporter—murders and all sorts of things. It is very interesting to have him with us."

Nellie's interest was awakened at once. A newspaper man—how wonderful!

BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE RESULT OF LIGHTNING SUNDAY

Fire and lightning caused the destruction of a large barn on the farm of John Tollinger, Xenia, Fairfield pike, early Sunday morning with all of its contents. Although estimates of the probable loss could not be obtained it is believed that heavy damage resulted in the destruction of the building. The fire started at one o'clock from a bolt of lightning during the severe storm and although it was discovered almost immediately, efforts to save the structure were unavailing.

Included in the contents destroyed were the entire crops of wheat and oats, not yet threshed, and of unestimated value, a considerable quantity of hay, and all the farm implements. Two calves, representing the only live stock left in the barn, were saved.

Neighbors who saw the flames offered assistance and were instrumental in saving the residence and two out-buildings which were fired by sparks. The building and contents were only partly protected by insurance.

Styles BY LENORE

Satin, the color of a delicate pink shell, is made low of waist, with surplice bodice, and is slashed at the side to reveal a finely pleated foundation of chiffon. In such a frock may this season's debutante dance and dine, and feel assured of a style which will be chic throughout the season. There is no blouse to the bodice, and the skirt, too, is entirely flat, all the edges being self-bound and the only trimming appears in the girdle which is embroidered with glittering crystals beads and silver thread.

The same idea of a skirt open at the side revealing the foundation is used also in some of the new day-time dresses. Only the foundation is made in a contrasting color.

NELLIE IS INTRODUCED TO THE BOARDERS

Mrs. Doty had informed Nellie that meals were ready when she heard the gong and that her guests were all very prompt in taking their places at table. What a "gong" was Nellie did not know, but when she heard the three strokes—unmusical, she hurried down to dinner.

"This place is for you," the waitress told her, pointing to a vacant space between an old lady and a young one—the former a sweet looking woman with a kindly expression; the latter, a thin, angular female whom Nellie at once decided she did not like.

"She makes me think of vinegar or something pucker," she said to herself, as she sat down feeling a bit awkward, "but the old lady's nice."

The guests at Mrs. Doty's all sat at one long table. "The dining room," she carefully explained to every new arrival, "was too small to admit of any other arrangement." Gradually the people filed in and took their places, and Nellie, interested, sized each one up—the usual semi-prosperous sort who live in the better class New York boarding house, such as this, an elderly couple, several women of uncertain ages, two or three younger ones, a couple of middle-aged men who looked tired and uninteresting.
